

DAVID DZULKIFLI
DIRECTOR

David began his career in 1975 with Esso Production Malaysia Inc. (“EPMI”) in Kuala Lumpur where he worked in various accounting and finance capacities, including Internal Control Supervisor and Financial Accounting Division Manager until 1981 when he began a “Special Assignment” with the Managing Director of EPMI.

In 1982 he became the Supervisor of Planning and Budgeting for the Engineering Division of EPMI before being assigned to Esso Eastern Inc. in Houston, Texas, in 1984 and then to Esso Australia Limited in Sale, Victoria, in 1985 on a Temporary Foreign Assignment (TFA). In 1986, he returned to Kuala Lumpur and became the Assistant Controller of EPMI until 1988 when he was posted to EPMI in Kerteh, Terengganu to become the Regional Accounting Manager, a position he served until 1992. He returned to Kuala Lumpur in 1992 as the Materials Department (Procurement Manager) for EPMI and Esso Malaysia Berhad (now known as Petron Malaysia Refining & Marketing Bhd) until 1997.

As the Procurement Manager, he oversaw the Warehouse Operations at the Shore Base, supporting Drilling, Production Operations and Projects.

In 1997 he was assigned to Exxon Company International (ECI) New Jersey as the South East Asia Downstream Procurement Manager, based in Kuala Lumpur until 1999. In this assignment he oversaw the operations of the warehouses in Singapore, Malaysia and Thailand.

In 1999, he was posted to Fairfax, Virginia, USA to become a member of the ExxonMobil Global Procurement “Merger Transition Planning Team” until 2000.

DIRECTOR

In Fairfax, he was part of the team that crafted the ExxonMobil “Global Sourcing Handbook”. Upon the merger, he headed a team that ‘audited’ several Mobil Oil sites (Aberdeen, Jakarta and Melbourne), to identify the gaps between the Handbook prescriptions and the existing practices

In 2001, he was assigned to ExxonMobil Oil Indonesia Inc. in Jakarta, Indonesia as the Procurement Services Manager until 2002 when he assumed the role as the Asia Pacific Regional “Purchase to Pay” Manager for ExxonMobil. In Indonesia he oversaw the Warehouse operations in Aceh and helped set up a Land Base in Cepu for the Project start-up.

In 2002, he retired from ExxonMobil and started providing private consultancy services in the area of supply chain management to the group of companies under PT Bakrie and Brothers Tbk (“Bakrie and Brothers”) in Jakarta, Indonesia until 2003. In the same year in 2003, he was appointed as Vice President of Procurement for PT Bakrie Telecom Tbk and Senior Vice President of Procurement of PT Cakrawala Andalas Televisi or commonly known as ANTV in Jakarta, Indonesia both of which are the subsidiaries of Bakrie and Brothers conglomerate.

Since 2008 he has retired from Bakrie and Brothers and freelanced as a Consultant on supply chain management and control processes, before becoming an Advisor to Price Waterhouse Business Advisory Division. He then partnered with Tecnicas Reunidas of Spain in 2016 and helped them to navigate the challenging PETRONAS tendering process, and win a sizeable portion of the EPC work for the PETRONAS refinery at Pengerang/Johor.
